Welcome

The supply of personal protective equipment (PPE) to industrial enterprises and also to small and medium-sized traders has been a matter of “box shifting” for a long time. To remain attractive to customers and to stay in business, a retailer needs to develop new ways of creating customer loyalty, both regionally and nationally. The main focus of all endeavours must be both on personal safety and on ensuring product availability.

Moreover, there have been a number of changes on the global market since the first PPE trade conference in 2013. The digitalisation of business processes and the diversity of suppliers and products have increased, presenting retailers with new challenges of differentiating themselves and of standing out among the competition.

The conference “Trends in Global PPE Distribution” therefore covers topics such as:

- Marketing branded products through strategic partnerships
- Creating customer loyalty as the most important asset of an independent retailer
- Developing risk-focused system solutions for customers
- Offering new supply solutions
- Selling PPE products online

It will be a great opportunity to discuss these attractive ideas and trends with experts and colleagues while also networking with others in the industry.

We look forward to welcoming you!
